Let's Start!

A few miles from here to there ...

Learning Outcome

Accurately use information about directions to places in a limited range of social situations.

Can Do Statements

- I can ask and say where a place is.
- I can ask and say how far a place is.
- I can ask and report about events and things.

Ask your partner:

- How far is it from your house to your friend's house?
- Do you walk there, drive or take public transit?

Let's Explore!

John is talking to the tourists about their walking tour. What event do they ask him about?

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Tourist#1: So John, how far is Lima from where we anchored?
John: It's about 25 miles, I believe. Lima sits on the cliffs over the sea, so we have to take the bus up to the city.
Tourist#1: How long does that take?
John: I'm not sure ... maybe an hour.
Tourist#1: How far are the restaurants we are going to? From each other, I mean.
John: I googled them and they look like they were a few miles from each other.
Tourist#1: A few miles? My knees can't handle that, John!
John: Well, we can take breaks between each place.
Tourist#2: I heard there's a Pisco Sour Day in Lima!
John: Yes, they have a day to celebrate their cocktail.
Tourist#2: Wow! When is that event?
John: Hmm ... I'm not sure. I can google that and get back to you.

Let's Practice!

Learning Points

Saying How Far a Place Is

You use the prepositions from and to when you want to talk about how far a place is.

You use from to talk about the starting point.

From our hotel, the park is 5 miles.

or

The park is 5 miles from our hotel.

You use to to talk about the ending point.

It is 5 miles to the park.

To ask how far a place is, you use the phrase "How far ... ?"

Examples:

• Anne: How far is Lima from our boat?

Michael: It's about 25 miles to Lima.

Pisco Sour Day in Peru

Pisco Sour is the Peruvian national cocktail (drink with alcohol). A Pisco sour is made of Pisco, lime juice, sugar, ice and whipped egg white. When you go to Peru as a tourist, you can try this refreshing drink.

Peru celebrates Pisco Sour Day in February. There are music events, food stands and, of course, Pisco Sour!

Do you want to try it?
